

CHOW

CABARET

Sunday, October 15, 7pm Giacomo Gates

From Gershwin, Ellington, Cole Porter and Monk, to Miles and Irving Berlin... Nuthin' But the Truth... with Tony Lombardozi, guitar, and Jeff Fuller, bass.

"Gates is one of the most extraordinary singers working in jazz today, the owner of a joyful baritone who has synthesized a host of influences - Eddie Jefferson, Jon Hendricks and Sinatra among them - and turned them into something uniquely his own." - LA Daily News

Sunday, November 5, 7pm New York City's Baby Jane Dexter

"The phrase 'keeping it real' and all it suggests certainly applies to Baby Jane Dexter, a longtime cabaret performer whose booming pop contralto is one of the more formidable voices on the New York nightclub stage." - The New York Times

Sunday, December 10, 7pm Douglas Williams

After packing the house last season with pianist Ted Taylor (of the Algonquin), Williams returns with Holiday Classics from the 40s and 50s. Think: Bing Crosby.

Sunday, October 22, 7pm

Amber Edwards & Andrew Rubenoff

Too Marvelous for Words - A Celebration of Johnny Mercer: Back for their second season, longtime musical partners Edwards and Rubenoff "accentuate the positive" with an evening of witty, romantic classics.

Sunday, November 12, 7pm Anne Tofflemire

Tofflemire, a New Haven treasure, delivers another knock-out show celebrating America's favorite women composers over the last 100 years.

THE CABARET at CHOW is New Haven's newest performance space featuring classic cabaret, live jazz and blues, and GET LIT, an author's series in collaboration with R.J. Julia Booksellers. Directly behind ZINC, CHOW is a downtown hot spot with an intimate interior and sophisticated entertainment, attracting the best talent from the Connecticut region and bringing in top names from New York. Stop by any Friday and Saturday for great jazz and blues, and enjoy the Sunday Cabaret with dinner at ZINC.

Cabaret shows: Sundays at 7. Doors open at 5. $15 cover with an $8 drink minimum. $75 season passes include admission to any cabaret event, priority seating for up to five and a complimentary cocktail.

Reservations required: (203) 772-3002. Pre- or post-show dinner reservations only at ZINC: (203) 624-0507.

GET LIT!

CHOW, in tandem with R.J. Julia Booksellers, introduces GET LIT - a "literary cocktail series" featuring readings, book signings and opportunities to share a drink with celebrated Connecticut authors. Sundays, 7pm. $5 cover (goes toward purchase of book). RSVP: (203) 772-3002. Dinner available at ZINC.

GET LIT kicks off Sunday, October 29th at 7pm as Sandi Kahn Shelton reads from A Piece of Normal. Other GET LIT dates: November 19, December 3 and December 17. For specific authors and details, visit www.chownewhaven.com.
